Apprenticeships and contracts

“I don't consider apprenticeships as placements. Ek saal main mera baccha to vapas sarak pe aa gaya (my candidate is back to being unemployed in a year),” said Umesh Gautam, who, in roles as wide ranging as a placement officer or in-charge of a whole skill centre, has placed skilled candidates with companies for the past two decades.

Umesh Gautam, with two decades of experience in connecting skilled workers with companies, emphasizes that an apprenticeship should not be categorised as a job placement and should be excluded from placement data. Photo provided by author.

Apprenticeships which last a year is a carrot companies dangle in front of skilled candidates, he said. Once a year is over, apprentices are chucked out into the cold. Now comes the second carrot. Desperate skilled candidates see their earnings dip from Rs 25,000 a month to zero. They are directed towards labour contractors for India Inc. The riders: sub-contracted employment, no insurance, no graded pay hikes, no job security.
